Affidavit of prejudice seeks new trial judge

By Gale Bogle
Managing Editor

An affidavit of prejudice will be filed against Municipal Court Judge H. Richard Dunpace next week in the cases of the students arrested in the May ROTC disturbances, according to Jack Gallon, attorney for the students.

Gallon said the suit will be filed in order to try to get another judge to hear the cases because Judge Dunpace was the object of a law suit filed by the students.

TRIAL DATES have been set in five of the 21 cases of persons charged in the disturbance cases. Dates were set last Friday after a pre-trial conference between court officials and defense attorneys.

At the same time defense attorneys made application to the court for a commission to take depositions from several University officials, starting with the colonel in charge of the ROTC review. The application asks that the defense be allowed to question and take depositions from University President Dr. Hollis A. Moore Jr.; Dr. Otto Bauer, assistant vice president of student affairs; Derek Dickinson, assistant dean of students and Dale Shaffer, University chief of police.

Prosecutor John Cheetwood said no action was taken on the application and that he will file briefs against the motion before any ruling is made by the court.

THE SETTING of trial dates came one week after the U.S. District Court in Toledo dismissed a suit filed by the students to have the law under which they were charged declared unconstitutional.

The suit claimed that the law was vague and meaningless, because it permits punishment for exercising the First Amendment rights, because it fails to provide standards by which to determine if a crime has been committed and because it encourages improper and arbitrary enforcement against critics of the U.S. and University policy.

Also included in the suit was the question of banishment as a form of punishment should the student be found guilty in court action.

The suit contended that it is unconstitutional and "smacks of British tyranny" because it violates constitutional protections of free speech, freedom of travel, free access to courts and houses of government and privileges of citizenship.

IN DISMISSING the action the court ruled that it did not have jurisdiction to proceed in the matter since federal district courts have been forbidden, under recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings, from intervening in state court prosecutions unless proven harassment or bad faith prosecutions are shown.

The court also ruled that it would not presume that the students would be banished nor that they could not find legal remedy in the proper state courts and dismissed the action until further state action was concluded.

The original suit on the question of the constitutionality of the arrest for disruption of a lawful assembly was filed against Gov. John J. Gilligan, Attorney General William Brown, Dr. Moore, Dickenson and Shaffer.

ADDED TO THE suit when the banishment question was included were Judge Dunpace and Cheetwood.

Trial dates set include Sept. 30 for Russell Haber, of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Oct. 6 for Robert F. Lindsay, sophomore (ED.); Oct. 7 for Kenneth L. Rogers, of Dayton, Oct. 13 for Timothy Herpel, sophomore (A&S); and Oct. 14 for George Macdonald, senior (A&S).

All except Rogers were students when charged in May. Rogers was a former film editor for WBGU-TV.

Dr. Moore ordered a halt to the May 18 ROTC Review when an estimated 500 protestors slowly surrounded a contingent of cadets. Another 1,000 looked on at the parade grounds behind Memorial Hall.

AMID ANTI-war protests, the small group of ROTC cadets eventually turned and marched for the ROTC building.

May 27, 16 persons were arrested and six more were arrested later. Charges state that those arrested "did unlawfully and willfully disturb said meeting (ROTC Review) by entering the parade grounds which had been roped off."

The charge carries a maximum $50 fine and/or a 10 day jail sentence.

Prosecutor to file appeal in drug conviction reversal

Wood County Prosecuting Attorney, Daniel Spitzer will file an appeal with the Ohio State Supreme Court in the Sixth District Court of Appeals decision which overturned the narcotics convictions of two University students.

The Appeals court last Friday unanimously overturned the convictions of Charles R. Cohn, who graduated from the University in June, and Eric Furry, junior (A&S) on the grounds that Bowling Green Police illegally entered their apartment.

Both Cohn and Furry were arrested at their residence on Thurston Ave. on June 1, 1970.

BOTH MEN were found guilty in jury trials in Bowling Green Municipal court last August.

Cohn was convicted of possession of narcotics and knowingly permitting the use of a dwelling for keeping and dispensing narcotics and hallucinogens. Furry was convicted of manufacturing hallucinogens, possession for sale of hallucinogens and prohibited use of a dwelling.

Cohn and Furry appealed their convictions on the grounds that the search warrant was unlawfully executed and the search unlawfully made since officers failed to knock, identify themselves and their purpose and opened the screen door; that the warrant was not based on probable cause; that the magistrate issuing the warrant was not impartial and that the law under which they were charged is unconstitutional.

In handing down its unanimous ruling, the appeals court said although the police officers announced they were police, they failed to state the purpose of the visit and opened a screen door without knocking, in violation of the Ohio law governing forcible entry.

THE RULING also cited state and federal court interpretation of the Fourth Amendment's protection from unlawful searches and seizures including prohibitions against police with or without warrants, entering homes without announcing their purpose and presence by knocking, unless officers believe they are in bodily harm or that evidence is being destroyed or the subjects are attempting to escape.

The court denied all other claims made by the men and ordered new trials for both.

Spitzer said he would appeal the decision on the grounds that the court applied the law improperly to the facts as submitted.

First of several revisions

VP Scheuerman to oversee Safety

By Brian Steffens
Contributing Editor

In the first of several new revisions for the Division of Campus Safety, President Hollis A. Moore Jr., has placed J. Claude Scheuerman, vice president of operations, in the position of administrative overseer of the department.

Before coming to the University as vice president of operations, Scheuerman was business manager at California Technical Institute at Palomona, California and vice president of business affairs at Sangamon University in Illinois.

In each of those former capacities, Scheuerman was involved with campus security and parking services and was thus a likely candidate for the position here, according to Richard L. Edwards, executive assistant to the president.

LAST YEAR administrative problems arose in the Division of Campus Safety due to the chain of command. Line officers reported to Chief Shaffer, Shaffer reported to Director of Campus Security and Safety James Saddoris, Saddoris reported to Assistant Vice President of Student Affairs Dr. Otto Bauer, and Dr. Bauer reported to President Moore.

James G. Bond and Director of Personnel Services John D. Hayes were also involved in the decision making process.

Scheuerman said that this year the line officers will report to Chief Shaffer, Shaffer will report to an as yet unfilled position of Director of Campus Safety, the director will report to Scheuerman, and Scheuerman will report to the president.

Chief Shaffer will also work closely with the Dean of Students Office and the Provost's Office in areas related to students and faculty-staff, Scheuerman said.

This realignment will effectively reduce red tape and streamline the chain of command, he said.

NEW REVISIONS for the Division of Campus Safety are to be implemented between now and the beginning of fall quarter, according to Scheuerman, and are a result of recommendations made by numerous reports on the subject.

These reports were submitted by student marshalls, Chief Shaffer, Dr. Bauer and Marvin Herrington, an outside consultant.

Student disruptions in May, a shakeup in Campus Safety personnel, and the resignations of Director Saddoris and Assistant Director William Steinfurth prompted President Moore to call in the outside consultant to evaluate the security program and make recommendations for needed changes.

Herrington, coordinator of security for California state colleges, was brought to campus last month. He had been chief of police at the Davis branch of the University of California and Northwestern University. Since his visit here last month, Herrington has become the director of police services at Stanford University.

Herrington recommended the realignment of the chain of command involving Scheuerman, the Dean of Students Office and the Provost's Office; the change of name from Campus Security to the Division of Campus Safety; and that the Campus Safety office be relocated.

THE DECISION to realign the chain of command coincides with recommendations made in Dr. Bauer's and Chief Shaffer's reports. The new name of Campus Safety and the scheduled move of the department into space in Commons was also recommended by Chief Shaffer.

Scheuerman said that recommendations and revisions not yet implemented but in the planning stages include:

-the hiring of a director of Campus Safety at a considerable pay increase. Candidates for this position are presently being sought, said Scheuerman.

-the hiring of a full time investigator. Candidates for this position are currently being interviewed, Scheuerman said. The investigator should monitor all assemblies openly and should concentrate on potential violence only; not on political viewpoints, Herrington advised.

-PLANS TO FILE an application with the federal government for the purchase of $140,000 worth of new radio-communications equipment. If the application is approved and a decision made to purchase the equipment, Scheuerman said the federal government would pay all but $34,000 of the cost.

-a change in uniform policy. Herrington recommended that administrative and investigation personnel should not wear uniforms. He also advised that line officers' uniforms should be less ostentatious and differentiated from support personnel (i.e. Parking Services, Building and Facilities, Maintenance).

Dr. Bauer recommended that Chief Shaffer, administrative personnel, investigation personnel and parking service employees wear blazers and that line officers revise their uniforms to eliminate ostentatious accessories such as leather and large firearms equipment.

Singer Angus Godwin to perform tonight

Folksinger and guitarist Angus Godwin will give a free public concert tonight at eight in the Recital Hall of the Music Building.

Godwin's training is an unusual combination of formal schooling and grass-roots. A native of North Carolina, his family background includes Scottish, English and French strains in addition to Cherokee Indian, and he performs in nine different languages.

He has worked as a farm and railroad laborer and as a book salesman and waiter. The Juilliard School of Music graduate has also taught music at the Horace Mann and Rhoades Schools.

A composer in folk idiom as well as a singer, Mr. Godwin's repertoire includes spirituals, Appalachian folk songs, contemporary and Broadway musical selections.

Mr. Godwin's Bowling Green appearance is sponsored by the Student Activities Office.

Final summer offering

'The 13 Clocks' at Huron

"The Thirteen Clocks," a play for children based on a short story by James Thurber, will play two matinee performances at the Huron Playhouse, Aug. 12 and 13 at 2 p.m.

The play is a delightful fantasy about a handsome Prince and a beautiful Princess, an evil Duke, and a mysterious spirit known as the Golux. Thurber, world-famous creator of stories and poems for both children and adults, originally wrote "The Thirteen Clocks" as a short story.

FRANK LOWE has adapted it into a sincere and sensitive piece of children's theater that does not talk down to children. Instead it allows them to experience, create and use their imagination.

The tale begins when a Wizard tells a wandering Minstrel about the evil Duke of Coffin Castle who has stopped time in the castle by freezing the thirteen clocks at ten to five some seven years before.

The Minstrel, actually Prince Zorn of Zorna, is determined to win the hand of Princess Saralinda, the Duke's niece. The Golux, child of a wizard and a witch promises to help him.

The Duke discovers that Zorn is a Prince and gives him the seemingly impossible task of returning with one thousand jewels within ninety-nine hours.

Worse yet, all the clocks must be striking five when he returns. So with the help of a rose from Saralinda, the Prince and the Golux begin the adventure and the race against time.

Bruce Baker (Sidney) and Shari Goldberg (Lorain) play Prince Zorn and Princess Saralinda, while Joe Russo (Sea Girt, N.J.) will be seen as the crafty Duke whose only fault is being wicked.

Barbara Callander (Silver Springs, Md.) plays the well-meaning but befuddled Golux, and Gail Mackay (Holden, Mass.) portrays Hagga, the woman who weeps jewels.

David Johnson (Waukegan, Ill.) is the Wizard, and Samuel J. Zachary (Shavertown, Pa.) appears as Hark, the Duke's henchman.

COMPLETING THE cast are David A. Koch (Mid-dletown) as Tossot, Ron Vigneault (Derby, Conn.) as Taleteller, James Bianchi (Lakewood) as the Traveler, and Donna Kardux (Bowling Green) as the Troublemaker.

George Caldwell is directing the Playhouse production "The Thirteen Clocks." The settings were designed by John Hepler associate managing director.

Curtain time for the "Thirteen Clocks" is 2 p.m., Aug. 12 and 13. No reserved seats are available. General admission tickets will go on sale at 1 p.m. before the performance. The admission price is $.75 for both adults and children. The performance will last approximately one hour.

Bookstore update

Here is the second report on our University Bookstore, and how it operates constantly for the intellectual benefit of the students, (sic).

August 3: I am happy to report the bookstore has, as advertised, received copies of "The Pentagon Papers." Today there were three of them, on the bottom shelf of the rack labeled "Cook Books." Right next to the Bible.

I am particularly interested today, however, in the very large display window immediately inside the main entrance to the bookstore—the one bearing the legend, "WELCOME PARENTS AND FRESHMAN." (The word welcome is cut from yellow construction paper; the word "parents" is in red, and "and" is in orange; and "Freshman" is in green. Somebody's been taking Education courses.)

I GATHERED that the intent of the display in this window was to "welcome" newcomers to the University Bookstore and to indicate what kinds of articles are available for sale in the University Bookstore. The University Bookstore.

I made an inventory of the items on display:

- 1 BG pennant
- 2 T-shirts—one "Falcon"; one "BGSU"
- 1 felt football
- 1 sew-on BG seal
- 1 candle
- 1 "BGSU" decal
- 1 stuffed dog
- 2 BG pillows
- 1 stuffed toy Falcon
- 1 apparent notebook cover
- 1 box of stationery
- 1 file box
- 2 "Bowling Green" decals

1 pair knit "baby shoes" in plastic box

THE ABOVE items were either in orange or in orange-and-black. In addition there were:

- 1 "fraternity paddle" ("BGSU")
- 1 "BGSU" dice cup containing ruler, pencils and pens.
- 1 BGSU looseleaf binder
- 2 spiral notebooks
- 1 desk calendar-blitter
- 1 roll "Scotch Magic" tape
- 1 bottle "Elmer's Glue-All"
- 1 large pencil eraser
- 1 "How to Study in College" booklet
- 1 orange "Magic Marker"
- 1 typewriter eraser
- 1 BGSU beer mug
- 1 plastic pail containing toothbrushes, "Crest" toothpaste, "Dial" soap, "Prel" shampoo, and a clothes brush.

These are some of the items available in the University Bookstore. There was not a single book on display in the window (I do not include that little "how to" publication in the category of a book).

THE BOOKSTORE personnel know what appeals to your parents, kiddies, and they know how to feed their fantasies of what colitch (sic) is about: football, fraternities and fourth-grade pencil-boxes. Books? Hell, you can sell those back to the store (at a 75 per cent loss) as soon as the quarter is over, right?

Bookcases are for stuffed animals (excuse me, "College Pets") and pictures from the senior prom. Anybody knows that. Besides, too much reading is bad for your eyes, and is likely to produce great unhappiness.

As Lord Berkeley said in the 17th century, "Thank God there are no free schools or printing; ... for learning has brought disobedience and heresy into the world, and printing his divulged them ... God keep us from both."

Rock gospel group here in concert tomorrow

The wave of fundamentalist religion among America's youth has also infiltrated pop music.

A North Carolina rock gospel group calling themselves "The New Directions" will make a stop at the University part of their nation-wide summer concert tour tomorrow.

Admission is free for their 2 p.m. concert in the Recital Hall of the Music Building.

The interdenominational, integrated Christian group of 50 young musicians was formed in 1968.

They began singing gospels at concerts in their home state, but with a deep belief in Christianity and the responsibility of spreading the word of their beliefs, they incorporated multimedia presentations and contemporary sounds with their music, performing concert dates outside North Carolina.

The New Directions concert is being sponsored by the Student Activities Office.

Moore appoints committee

Rights under study

An ad hoc committee to prepare a clear statement of student and faculty rights of political expression on campus and the University's safeguard of individual liberties has been called for by University President Hollis A. Moore, according to Richard L. Edwards, executive assistant to the president.

In a letter to the ad hoc committee members, President Moore also suggested the committee address itself to the "double jeopardy issue" and other matters which arise from the overlapping jurisdictions of University, community and state.

In this context, double jeopardy refers to a situation in which a student could be held accountable for his actions to the student court, the city municipal court and or a state court.

confidentiality of student records and procedural due process," said Moore in his letter.

"The statement can address itself to guarantees of freedom of expression as well as freedom from harassment and I hope will underscore the need for a climate of civility in the University community," the letter continued.

President Moore has asked the committee to submit a statement to him no later than September 10.

Committee members include Chairman Dr. Maurice Mandell, chairman of the marketing department and president of the local chapter of the Association of American University Professors; Richard Edwards; Miss Kathleen Frazee, editor of the 1971-72 BG News; Dr. George Herman, associate dean of faculties; Mrs. Vivian Lawyer, assistant dean of students; Dr. Charles Leone, dean of the graduate school; and Art Tolston, president of the student body.

Attorney Richard Marsh will assist the committee in the role of consultant.

Campus Safety Division will move to Commons

The Division of Campus Safety will move into extra space in the northwest corner of Commons, according to Richard L. Edwards, executive assistant to the president.

A meeting will be held today to discuss the design aspects of the new Campus Safety facilities, said J. Claude Scheuerman, vice president of operations.

Scheuerman also said that consideration will be given to the proposal that University Parking Services also be moved into Commons.

International Center will move into the suite of offices in the basement of Shatzel Hall abandoned by Sociology and the School of Music will move into Johnston Hall which housed the International Center.

Moving the Division of Campus Safety into Commons, adjacent to Kohl and Rodgers freshmen living units, could make or break student relations with Campus Safety, Scheuerman said. He said it has been suggested that Campus Safety employees eat their meals in the Commons Dining Hall in an attempt to ease any tensions that may arise from the move.

Smaller gunbelt to be tried

Chief of Police has already purchased a new, smaller gunbelt which the department is trying out. A meeting to discuss uniform revisions will be held next week, according to Scheuerman.

--an increase in the number of Campus Safety personnel. Herrington and Chief Schaffer recommended that the Safety force be increased from 20 to 28. Dr. Bauer suggested that the manpower increase be made gradually and Scheuerman said that an increase in manpower would have to be a long range goal due to financial restrictions.

--THE IMPLEMENTATION of a Human Relations workshop to orient Campus Safety and other University employees with minority group student concerns. Scheuerman said he understands that the black student body will double this year and that such a workshop would be beneficial to all concerned.

--the implementation of training workshops. Plans are being made to periodically bring in outside specialists to provide short, concentrated in-service training programs for Safety personnel, Scheuerman said.

--a salary upgrading for all Campus Safety personnel.

--tightening of building security. The student marshal's report stressed the need for a closer watch of building security.

Other recommendations listed by Herrington and as yet not acted upon include:

--CHIEF SHAFFER should attend all University meetings related to police matters, including those with President Moore.

--Campus Safety should not use paid informants except in severe criminal cases; especially NOT in political areas.

--the development of an internal investigation procedure to handle alleged police misconduct.

--an improvement in relations between Campus Safety and city police.

--an improvement in relations between Campus Safety and area police agencies.

--A NEED FOR written emergency procedure provisions.

--a need for improved dormitory security.

Herrington recommended a card key system and individual chain type locks for all rooms.

--a need for more administrative rules, regulations and policies.

--that all safety related functions (i.e. fire safety, building security, health safety, etc.) be placed under the direction of the Buildings and Facilities department.

--a need for the development of a police manual.

What's a person to do with an intelligent mouse?

Western Electric's College Gift Program, although designed to provide equipment that will strengthen education through increased scientific research, sometimes has its lighter moments.

For example, one gift helped foil a very clever mouse -- all in the interest of science!

The mouse was among a number of mice used by a famous university in the following experiment to determine the nutritional value of various animal feeds: each mouse was given the same amount of food and an exercise wheel that would determine how different foods affected the mouse's activity.

This particular mouse astounded the researchers by eating the same amount of food, racking up twice as many turns on the exercise wheel as any other mouse, yet getting fatter and fatter.

An ultra-violet lamp was supplied and the researchers watched in amusement as the clever mouse ate his food, then stood alongside the exercise wheel and spun it rapidly with his front paws as the turn counter clicked away.

End of mystery.

Branch campus opens

The University's Four County Academic Center, formerly the Bryan Academic Center, will open for business Sept. 1 for registration of students for the fall quarter. Although the center is experiencing a period of change, consistent with the Ohio Board of Regents 1970 Revised Master Plan for Higher Education in Ohio, students at the academic center will be able to pursue their college studies without interruption.

"WE ARE STILL operating an academic center," said Dr. Raymond Endres, vice provost of continuing education, "but Four County Technical Institute will be planning its own program of general studies during this year of transition."

He said the technical institute hopes to have its program ready by the fall of 1972, and will offer an associate of arts degree in general studies.

Students earning this degree will be eligible for matriculation to Bowling Green or any other four-year college, without loss of credit, Dr. Endres pointed out.

Dr. Ronald Jones, special assistant to the Provost, is serving as director of the Four County Academic Center and liaison officer between the Ohio Board of Regents in Columbus and the emerging two-year institutions in northwest Ohio.

DR. JONES WAS a member of Bowling Green's education faculty until 1964, when he left to become president of Urbana College. As president, he was instrumental in mounting a large building program at Urbana.

He left the post in 1969 to return to Bowling Green, where he holds the title of associate professor of education, in addition to his duties at Four County.

He replaces Russell Cayton, a full-time member of the Bryan High School faculty, who served as director of the Bryan Academic Center during the past 14 years. Cayton vacated this post when the center was moved from Bryan High School, but remains as a teacher at the high school.

REGISTRATION FOR fall quarter courses at the Four County Academic Center is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 1 from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the Technical Institute.

Orientation of new freshmen will take place between 3 and 4 p.m. Academic advisors will be on duty from 3 to 5 p.m. Unlike past years, when advance and final registration periods were scheduled, there will be only one registration day. Books will also be available for purchase at that time and students may pay their fees as well.

New students who have not been accepted as students at the University must submit applications for admission by Sept. 1. Those planning to attend University classes at the Four County Academic Center should clearly indicate this on the admissions application.

CLASSIFIEDS GET RESULTS

Catalogue a give-away

Mail order catalogs provide people with a fast and convenient means of shopping, but a catalog listing over a half-million free items sounds too good to be true.

Yet it's a reality for the 600 schools from coast to coast participating in a program unique for U.S. industry in scope and size.

The program, now in its 44th year, is Western Electric's College Gift program, which donates surplus items of electronic equipment to colleges and universities from both Western Electric and Bell Laboratories. These items, although no longer usable by the company, prove extremely valuable to their new owners.

They include industrially outmoded gear, such as oscilloscopes, transistors that don't measure up to rigid Bell System standards, or surplus meters, resistors and capacitors.

THE PURPOSE of the program is to strengthen engineering education through the donation of equipment that stimulates scientific investigation. Often the equipment donated allows a school to pursue projects that would otherwise be impossible.

However, heavy demand and limited supply limit the number of schools that can participate, thus schools applying must meet certain eligibility requirements.

The program began with the donation of 18 surplus oscilloscopes to several northeastern schools in 1927. It now distributes more than half a million items a year, requires an annual catalog to list available materials, and has 13 storerooms scattered across the country to warehouse the equipment.

The catalogs list a total of 2,255 items on 118 pages, ranging from microscopes to rubber gloves and from filters to digital counters.

But if the number of items given away has grown, so has the schools' demand for them. Last year, 425 requests were received for a single piece of equipment -- an electron microscope. It finally went to Texas A&M for student research into the molecular structure of metals.

OTHER EXAMPLES include the electronic equipment in the semiconductor laboratory at Virginia Polytechnic Institute that came almost entirely from Western Electric's and Bell Laboratories' College Gift program.

The lab includes a vacuum system, about the size of a water cooler, used to prepare certain rare materials for graduate research in semiconductors.

And at North Carolina's Wake Forest University, a student in physics in experimenting with doped lead, thanks in part to the well-timed gift of a frequency monitoring instrument from the gift program.

At Purdue University in Indiana, another College Gift recipient, transistors and resistors are incorporated into the classroom, familiarizing students with the equipment they will be working with in industry.

Malcolm Klug, a junior at Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Washington, is using materials supplied through the program to determine exactly what takes place when a substance is subjected to nuclear, gamma and proton radiation.

SIMILARLY, MOST of the equipment given to the Newark College of Engineering is aimed specifically at student research. Oscilloscopes the school received last year were incorporated into a senior engineering course on communication.

Every January, complete storeroom inventories are forwarded to Western Electric headquarters in New York City, where the College Gift group compiles a complete list of available merchandise.

In May the catalogs are mailed to the participating schools and in less than a week, order forms start to filter in. After all order forms have been received, the job of distribution is under way.

Each year the schools eagerly await Western Electric's spring cleaning -- knowing that what the company or Bell Laboratories may have no more use for will open up new scientific possibilities for them.

Ice Arena Notes

The third annual Summer Hockey School at the University opened this week with over 200 young players from eight states enrolled.

The three week school is divided into three age groups with players working out daily with their respective groups.

Falcon Hockey coach, Jack Vivian, is again the director of the school with Bob Berry of the Los Angeles Kings and former Falcon players, Bruce Blyth and Rick Allen, assisting Vivian.

Each week's activity will end with a scrimmage game on Saturday morning which is open to the public. The game schedule will begin with the 14-16 year-olds at 7:45 a.m., followed by the nine and 10-year-olds at 9:30 a.m. and the 11-13 year-olds group at 11:15 a.m.

The Ice Arena's first group lesson series of the season will begin Sept. 5 for beginners and advanced students from six years through adults.

The parent-preschooler course is scheduled for Sept. 6. The group lessons, taught by Arena professionals, are offered each year at a cost of $12 for the six week series. Applications are available at the Ice Arena skate shop or by phoning 372-2365. The deadline for all applications will be Aug. 30.

Four Canadian teams have entered the first annual Mid-Summer Curling Bonspiel to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Ice Arena.

Michigan and Ohio teams make up the rest of the draw with the local curling club having five entries.

The teams will be competing for the Strohs Brewery Trophy that will go to the winner of the first event. The two days of curling will start each morning at 9 a.m. and will be free and open to the public.

Outstanding Women picked from BG grads

Seven graduates of the University have been selected as Outstanding Young Women for 1971.

The program, now in its seventh year, recognizes young women between the ages of 21 and 35 for their contributions to the betterment of their communities, professions and country.

Two of those selected for recognition are 1970 graduates of the University. Mrs. Wendy Zimpher, a tennis professional and instructor living in Miamisburg and Beverly Evans, a graduate student at Michigan State University.

Other alumnae selected include 1965 graduate Charlene Alberts, Clearwater, Fla., an attorney; 1968 graduate Dayle Lum, Morristown, N.J., a teacher; 1969 graduate Judith McLane, Allen Park, Mich., a chemist for the Water Pollution Control Administration in Grosse Ile, Mich.; 1967 graduate Shirley Mercer, Southfield, Mich., a teacher, and Charlene Phillips, Towson, Md., who is employed by the First National Bank of Maryland.

Each year more than 6,000 women are nominated for recognition and complete biographical sketches of each nominee will appear in the 1971 edition of "Outstanding Young Women of America," to be published in November.

All nominees are now in competition for their state's Outstanding Young Women of the Year Award.
